

PRESERVED SNOWFLAKE

GLOBAL ARCHIVE

— EXHIBITION PROPOSAL —

Where Art, Science, and Nature Meet

Hundreds of real preserved snow crystals.

One growing archive.

Countless stories waiting to be discovered.

ABOUT THE

EXHIBITION

Every Snowflake Exists Only Once.

The Preserved Snowflake Global Archive is a growing collection of real snow crystals individually preserved and documented before they disappear forever.

Each preserved specimen represents one place, one storm, and one moment in Earth's atmosphere that can never occur again.

Visitors experience hundreds of magnified snow crystals while exploring the intersection of art, science, weather, and natural history through a collection unlike any other.

This exhibition invites wonder. It sparks curiosity. And it connects us to the beauty that surrounds us in the most fleeting moments.

“

I capture what nature creates for only a moment, and preserve it so the story can live on for generations to come.

DANIELLE OLIVER

Artist. Explorer. Preserver of Moments.

I am a Colorado artist and the founder of the Preserved Snowflake Global Archive. Each snow crystal I capture is collected by hand and preserved while fully frozen—protecting a moment in time that would otherwise disappear forever.

My work bridges art and science, emotion and evidence, beauty and preservation. It invites people to look closer, slow down, and remember that the natural world is full of miracles.
